Trials

The Olympics are scheduled to take place later this year. My family always enjoys watching the different events. It's impressive to see some of the world's greatest athletes compete. It's even fun to see when they receive their medals. We see them in their glory; however, what we don't see is all the years of work, sweat, blood, and tears that went into receiving that prize. Yet we also know that they would not have received the prize without the years of work. This helps me better understand the words of James when he said "My brethren, count it all joy when you fall into various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces patience" (James 1:2, 3). Obviously, James was not talking about athletic competition, but he was discussing a life of faithfulness. We will never grow in our faith if we never face trials. He was not teaching that we should enjoy trials but that we should see them as an opportunity for growth. May it never be that our trials knock us down and out but let us use them to grow more faithful every day. So that in the end we will receive our prize (I Corinthians 9:24-27; Philippians 3:12-14).
