Self Evaluation

When Paul wrote his first epistle to the church at Corinth he was writing to a congregation that had a whole bunch of problems. His purpose in writing was to help them get rid of those problems. I find it very interesting what Paul said in I Corinthians 9:27. He said "But I discipline my body and bring it into subjection, lest, when I have preached to others, I myself should become disqualified". Paul was concerned about the problems with the church in Corinth and he did whatever possible to help fix them. However, he never lost sight of the fact that even he needed to look at himself daily to make sure he was living right. If the apostle Paul saw a need to examine himself daily, let us also realize our need to do the same.
