Love Believes All Things

When Paul described “love” in I Corinthians 13 he said “love believes all things” (vs. 7). This doesn’t mean that love is ignorant but that a loving person desires to believe in the good of others. A wonderful example of this is found in Acts 9. When we first read about Paul (his name was actually Saul at this time) he was a persecutor of the church. When he repented and became a follower of Christ many were still afraid of him. Acts 9:27 says “But Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles. And he declared to them how he had seen the Lord on the road, and that He had spoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus”. It would have been easy for Barnabas to reject Paul but instead he showed a great example of what it means to “believe all things”. Let us also practice this type of love.
