Search Me, O God

David said, “Search me, O God, and know my heart; Try me, and know my anxieties; And see if there is any wicked way in me, And lead me in the way everlasting” (Psalm 139:3, 4). David wasn’t a perfect man, far from it, but he was a man who desired to live for God. His service to God was not merely outward, hoping that others would think of him as godly. He truly had a heart for God. David understood that God can search the heart in a way that might terrify some. This did not frighten David, but it was what he desired. Do you desire that God search your heart? What will God find? Let us purify our hearts so that we too can be people after God’s “own heart” (Acts 13:22).
